E-NEWSLETTER

Forward this message to a friend | April 2022

Dear Friend,

When it comes to compassion and representation, PRC has our clients covered. The silent heroes providing life-changing services to San Francisco's most vulnerable are rarely in the spotlight, but we think you should know who they are. Alisa Jackson has dedicated her life to advocating for others, and in this month's issue, we showcase her and the nearly seventeen years she's been with PRC.

Also, make sure to mark your calendars and get your tickets to celebrate Pride in person once again, at Gary Virginia and Donna Sachet's 24th annual Pride Brunch on Saturday, June 25th!

ALISA JACKSON, THE QUEEN BEE OF LEGAL ADVOCACY

"When I greet our African American clients, I get to see the pride and joy in their faces knowing that someone that looks like them will be representing them. I'm in a position of power and also a position of help. Representation is incredibly important. These types of connections are really special to me."

BRETT ANDREWS RECEIVES THE COMMUNITY IMPACT AWARD AT THE SFCHC GALA

We are proud to announce that PRC's CEO Brett Andrews was recognized for his leadership and work around health justice.

"I'm honored to accept this award on behalf of all of us who bring voice to the voiceless, who marshal and direct resources to the deserving, and to those willing to stand in harm's way against inequality, injustice, and discrimination. Many of you already know this about me. Admittedly, I'm a happy warrior, a very happy warrior. So, I hope you know you can count on me to show up and lend a hand as often as I can. Thank you." - Brett Andrews

What if you had the chance to rewrite history? Erik's world is thrown into free-fall when he's pulled into a wondrously bizarre time-traveling journey by Agent 701 (aka his now-sentient PrEP pill). Landing into the AIDS epidemic of the 80s, Erik finds himself in a race against history to save a life lost decades ago. Playing at New Conservatory Theatre Center now through May 8th. Yilong Liu's "PrEP Play, or Blue Parachute" is a contemporary queer fantasia that examines the ghosts of our past and the hopes for our future. Use code 'PrEPPartner' for 25% off tickets.

During shows, the fine folks at NCTC will have donation boxes available for anyone who would like to support the impactful work being done here at PRC.
